EVOLUTION OF SPECIES.

Darwin's Theory Receives a Disconcerting Blow.

IDIOTIC SOUTHERN NEGRO.

Graphic Story Told in the Show of His Capture at Great Risk in the Wilds of Central Africa, but Native Land Is America.

Chicago, March 27.—Darwin's theory of the evolution of species has received a disconcerting blow in a decision by Judge Windes that a "miss inguit" exhibited at a local animal show is a dumb, imbecile Louisiana negro boy. The court has awarded his custody to the mother.

The boy was called Congo at the show and a graphic story was told of his capture at great risk in central Africa. Thousands of people have stared at him as a "cannibal," "ape-man" and a "wild half-animal savage." In reality he is declared to be, despite his grotesque face and head, docile and harmless. His name is Willie Wilson and his mother declares he was kidnapped thirteen years ago.

BRISTLES WITH SARCASTIC.

Nickels Scathingly Denounces Cureton Bank Guaranty Bill.

Austin, March 27.—Warm tilts between representatives marked Saturday morning's session of the house when the Cureton bank guaranty bill was brought up.

Nickels was recognized to speak upon the amendment, substituting his measure and he scathingly denounced the pending bill as an administration measure and intimated its authors practiced political thrift.

Molloy leaped to his feet and objected to the remarks, but Nickels insisted he was right and that the bill conflicts with the charter rights of Texas banks. Nickels cited high legal authorities in support of his contentions.

Nickels spoke two hours. His speech was one of the most striking ever heard in the legislature, bristling with sarcasm, denunciation being interspersed with legal argument. He was given great attention.

The senate finally passed Ward's bill appropriating $25,000 to enable the attorney general to prosecute land suits. Hudspeth secured a compromise measure compelling the attendance of witnesses was not to be considered.

CREATES PANIC IN CAR.

Woman, When Asked For Her Fare, Produces a Revolver.

New York, March 27.—Mrs. Harriet Mohr, who said she was from Virginia, created a panic in a Sixth avenue surface car with a revolver. She was arrested after a terrific struggle with a policeman. The trouble started when the conductor asked Mrs. Mohr for a fare.

"Here's my fare," she cried, "drawing a revolver. 'I'm from Virginia and I'm looking for my husband, and when I find him I'll blow his head off.' At the police station the woman said that she had not meant to cause a disturbance, that she was merely looking for her husband.

Will Work Out Debt.

New York, March 27.—Rev. Joseph Dillier, a minister and missionary, who came here to pay by manual labor a debt of $127 which he owes to R. C. Williams, a Hudson street grocer, has agreed to accept the position at the grocery. He is sixty-two years old and gave up hope of ever paying the debt in any other way. His account with Mr. Williams had been long ago charged to profit and loss, but in view of the minister's earnest plea, he is to be allowed to work it out.

Mule Carried Nearly a Mile.

Atlanta, March 27.—A Georgia mule, attached to a light wagon, was struck by a mogul switching engine of the Western and Atlantic railway on the outskirts of Atlanta and carried a distance of almost a mile without sustaining the slightest injury. The big switch engine struck the team near Howells station and at Simpson street crossing the engine was brought to a standstill and the mule and wagon lifted from the cow-catcher.

Building Burns, Another Damaged.
Abilene, Tex., March 27.—Fire at Hawley destroyed the G. G. Copeland building and damaged the Hustler newspaper office.

IS HE DISABLED?

In This Case Pension Applicant Gained Wonderfully in Weight.

Chicago, March 27.—When a policeman in one year increases in weight from 195 pounds to more than 300 is he entitled to a pension because of disability?

In the case of Patrolman Patrick Reed the answer depends upon whether the obesity was due to an injury or merely because of good living. The police trial board has heard testimony and will further investigate the case. Medical experts have appeared before the commission, some to testify that the obesity was due to a heart lesion and that he could not return to work, while others testified his heart lesion was due to his obesity and both would disappear if he would take some exercise.

CLUB YEAR CLOSING.

Farewell Address of Mrs. M. W. Sims, Retiring President of the Woman's Club.

The Woman's Club met in the club rooms at Carnegie hall on Wednesday at 3 o'clock. The vasing of fragrant spring blossoms, and the arrangement of bright rugs over the floor, made the room pretty and inviting, and added a charm to this, the last club meeting of the year.

The retiring president, Mrs. M. W. Sims was at her desk, and promptly at the appointed hour called the club "to order." During the years now counted as victorious ones for this club, no presiding officer has been more capable, more faithful or more successful in her administration than has Mrs. Sims. To her good judgment and to her enthusiastic efforts, is due a generous measure of praise for the brilliant prospects which now promise to crown this club with even greater glory than it has yet known. Her words of wisdom and good cheer, were always "sweet to the ears" of her club sisters and her efforts for good always appreciated. When the officers for the new year—the names of whom have already been published in these columns—had been elected, and the President had given her farewell address, a tempting luncheon with tea was served.

We are glad to be able to give to our readers the President's address on this occasion, in full.

Mrs. Sims said:

Ladies, the course of study selected for next Fall, will be, Famous Women in History, and King Henry IV.

The play closes with the pithy epilogue, "First my fear, then my court'cy, last my speech. My fear is, your displeasure, my court'cy, my duty—my speech, to beg your pardon. If you look for a good speech now you undo me, for what I have to say will, I doubt not, prove mine own marring."

But to the purpose and so to the venture.

Brander Matthews says, to interest an audience, it is essential to have an anecdote, a platitude, and leave a thought. I may venture upon any of these great essentials, but instead we will have just a little confidential, retrospective chat, entre nous.

It is a positive inspiration to look into the faces of so many of the young women of Bryan, who have come to join our ranks. Among them I recognize many of our dear old members who once added lustre to the brilliant record made by this Club. For various reasons they wandered away from the pursuit of knowledge, seeking pleasure of a lighter vein, feeling perhaps it was better to have a jester to make them merry, than a philosopher to make them wise. But today they return to the field of literature, to take new draughts from the Pnyxian spring, and resume their travel in foreign lands.

Tupper says "travel is a ceaseless fount of education"—then consider how more than ordinary interesting and well informed we should be, who have spent twelve years in foreign Capitals and ancient seats of learning. We have wandered through the historic castles and places of England, France, Scotland, Spain and Denmark. We have witnessed the coronation of Kings and Queens, and attended Court balls where royalty danced. We looked on at the baptism of England's greatest queen. We saw King John and King Richard II driven from their thrones. We were in Rome with Caesar and Brutus—in Egypt with Anthony and Cleopatra—in Scotland with Macbeth and Duncan—in Venice with Shylock, Portia, Bassanio, Othello and Desdemona—in Denmark with Hamlet and Ophelia, and in England with Henry VIII, Katharine of Aragon and the arrogant Wolsey. We roamed through the enchanted forest of Arden with fair Rosalind and Orlando. In fact we grew so romantic and sentimental in reading of the happy lovers of "As you like it" that Mrs. McInnis and merrily skipping out of the club room Mrs. Brandon were discovered one day while they sang:

"It was a lover and his lass
With a hey, and a ho, and a hey nomino
That o'er the green corn field did pass.

In spring time—the only pretty ring time
When birds do sing, hey ding a ding ding—
Sweet lovers love the spring."

But ladies this is a club secret, so: "Tell it not in Gath, publish it not in the streets of Askelon."

On the 6th day of next October there will be offered to this club a grand excursion to England, round trip to cost $3.50 good for six months sojourn in England. While there we will be the guests of his Royal Highness, King Henry IV with the promise of much racy mirth furnished by the mad cap Prince Hal and his boon companion Jack Falstaff. We will also meet the famous Women in History, and hear the great heart secrets of Cleopatra, Josephine, Mary Stuart, Marie Antoinette, Aspasia and others—They will smile and tell us—yes, men rule the world—but women rule men, "they conquer those who conquer the world, and subject tyrants to tyranny"—Selah!!!

Our Cicero for this journey will be no less renowned a personage than the "Sweet Bard of Avon," who has taught us to find "books in running brooks, sermons in stones, and good in everything."

It has often been remarked that the members of this club can never be induced to attend social functions—no matter how brilliant—during club hours. In truth, we have associated with Royalty, so long, that simple gossip over the teacups, seems stale, flat and unprofitable by comparison.

In assuming the presidents chair last October I found a membership of only twelve. The number was small, but our meetings were thoroughly delightful and instructive. Unity of purpose, harmony and good fellowship, drew us very close to one another, but I could not feel satisfied with so small a membership, and I felt impelled for many reasons to invite others to take advantage of our course of study, and thus follow Dr. Elliot's advice of continuous education.

Our membership has now increased to thirty-two, and the grand results to be obtained by the efforts of such a band of clever united Federated Womanhood, fills me with joy.

Now dear friends, after dragging you all over Europe and darkest Africa—I am coming to leave with you—nay, I am going to give you something even better than a thought—I will give you a panacea for the saddest of all ills in life.

Some day—and that day seems so remote to most of you now—but some day, you will stand where I am today, in the evening shadows of life.

When your days are in the sear and yellow leaf, "with each succeeding year stealing something away from your beauty, leaving behind it, broader and deeper the gloom and the shadow"—when the friends of your youth have all gone to the unknown country of shadows which lies beyond the stars; when your children go from the parental roof, leaving your once joyous home silent, where will you go to find surcease of sorrow, and congenial companionship? Where, but to one of the Federated Women's Clubs?

They are a boon to lonely woman. There we keep in sweet sympathy with our fellow men. There we are taught the brotherhood of man, and in seeking to help others to be useful and happy, we forget our own sorrow.

Instead of sitting in a corner, growing melancholy, morbid and cynical we quietly lock the skeleton in our closet, wipe the tears from our eyes repress the sob that is rising in our throats, and with a brave heart go out into the world to offer a helping hand, or tender sympathy to our fellow men.

To the world we say, measure not the work until the day's out, and the labor done then bring your gauges. If the day's work is scant, why call it scant, effect no compromise, and in that we have nobly striven, at least, deal with us nobly women though we be and honor us with truth, if not with praise.

My dear young friends, if you would grow old gracefully, and keep a youthful, sympathetic heart in despite of many years, always belong to one of the Federated Women's Clubs.

It gives new heart and courage to the timid, new hope to the disheartened, and to the already strong and courageous, increased power for good. This is the panacea I offer you for old age.

There are hermit souls that live withdrawn,
In the peace of their content.
There are souls like stars, that dwell apart,
In a fellowless firmament.
There are pioneer souls that blaze their paths
Where highways never ran—
Let me live in my house by the side of the road,
And be a friend to man.

Let me live in my house by the side of the road,
Where the race of men go by,
The men who are good, the men who are bad,
As good and as bad as I.
Then why should I sit in a scornful seat,
And hurl the cynic's ban,
Let me live in my house by the side of the road,
And be a friend to man.

I can see from my house by the side of the road,
By the side of the highway of life,
The men who press on with the ardor of hope,
The men who are faint with the strife.
But I turn not away from their smiles or their tears,
Both, parts of an infinite plan.
Let me live in my house by the side of the road,
And be a friend to man.

I know there are brook gladdening meadows ahead,
And mountains of wearisome height,
And the road passes on thro the long afternoon,
And stretches far into the night.
But still I rejoice when the travelers rejoice
And weep with the travelers who mourn,
Nor live in my house by the side of the road,
Like the man who dwells alone.

Dr. Gambrell and Dr. Carroll Coming.
On next Sunday, April 4, Dr. J. B. Gambrell of Dallas, and Dr. J. M. Carroll of San Marcos, will speak at the First Baptist church. At the morning service Dr. Gambrell will speak on the subject "Ten Years in Texas." At 8 p. m. Dr. Carroll will speak on "Education." These men are two of the ablest leaders in the marvellous progress of Texas Baptists during the past decade. They are men who do things. As a superintendent of mission work, Dr. Gambrell has no superior. Dr. Carroll's work in founding the model Baptist Academy at San Marcos has been phenomenal. Their addresses will be deeply interesting and inspiring.

We have waited long for the coming of these strong leaders. The interests which they will consider will be great. It is of special importance that our business men of Bryan give Dr. Carroll a hearing. The time has doubtless come for a forward movement in the interest of the Texas Woman's College. In spite of hard times for nearly two years and reduced attendance, the institution has maintained and even advanced its high standard, though its expenses have exceeded its income. It can continue its beneficent work and enlarge its facilities if our Bryan people give it reasonable support. I believe that support can be secured. I believe, too, that generous investments by our people in the Texas Woman's College will bring large and more certain financial returns to the community than will any of the local enterprises in sight. These returns will be two-fold: through the money spent here by our students, and through gifts to the school from communities beyond our county. Every strong denominational school of Texas secures contributions from the state at large. One-third of the current expenses of the Southwestern University at Georgetown is contributed. Thus, too, may our school expect help from abroad.

It is no secret that the T. W. C. needs help. That help can be secured. The difficulties which we now meet can be overcome—I doubt not they will be overcome. The school can go forward to larger usefulness. Let every business man of Bryan now definitely decide that he will hear Dr. Carroll next Sunday night. Let our visitors attending this Missionary and Educational rally, go home enthusiastic for Bryan and the Texas Woman's College. Come.

O. C. CHARLTON.

BRYAN, TEXAS, MARCH 28, 1909.

WHICH IS THE DEBTOR?

A large number of newspapers big and little are eternally telling about the immense debt of gratitude that the people of Texas owe to the railroads and the injustice of requiring them to bear their part of the burden of government or to be subjected to any kind of restriction to which they object. The other side of the case is presented by a Georgia newspaper, the Atlanta Journal, which looks at the matter from a disinterested point of view. The Journal says:

"That the state of Texas has not been inimical to the railroads in the past is a fact which does not admit of dispute. The effort is made in certain quarters occasionally to create the impression that legislation in the Lone Star state has been radical, but a well informed correspondent of the New York Times, in correcting some of the misconceptions for which that newspaper is responsible, gives us some highly interesting facts and figures.

Cornelius Raby, the correspondent in question, takes the position that it would be difficult and indeed impossible for the Times or anyone else to establish that the decrease in railroad earnings in Texas during 1908 may with justice be attributed to any other cause than the depression that was shared alike by all commercial and industrial enterprises.

It will come as a surprise to a great many people, no doubt, to learn that the state of Texas during the past fifty years, in order to encourage railroad building, has surrendered out the public domain and transferred in fee to the railroads the stupendous amount of thirty-four million acres of land, which is equal to three-quarters of the area of Pennsylvania, or ten thousand acres for each mile of railroad constructed.

It was understood that this land was to compensate for the risk on construction in advance of actual demand.

These lands, we are told, at their present assessed value, are worth more than all the other railroad property in the state, including equipment, so that the railroads have a clear gain of all moneys taken in, above the actual running expenses.

"On which side is the debt of gratitude?" Mr. Raby asks, and continuing he says:

It is an absurd mistake to suppose that Texas is hostile to railroads, or to any corporation that exists for a proper purpose, and operates in conformity with the laws of the state. It is apparent to every reasoning mind that the upbuilding of railroads has a tremendous share in the upbuilding of a community. The legislators of Texas are men of intelligence and are not blind to this truth. What they do insist upon is a strict observance of statutes enacted to insure the safety of the traveling public, and compliance with certain constitutional provisions against "trusts, pool monopolies and other agreements in restraint of trade." In Texas the legislature controls the trusts, and the trusts have failed, as yet, to control the legislature. I think Texas has set a splendid example for the rest of the nation in securing a uniform enforcement of her laws, and a wholesome respect for her judiciary, even from a powerful corporation that is reputed elsewhere to have bought the courts and controlled the legislature.

While we have no other reason for passing along this valuable information than a regard for the truth, still it corrects an erroneous opinion in regard to one of our sister states. The great trouble with the railroads is that they overlook such incidents as this magnificent donation to the railroads in Texas and remember only the laws and regulations to keep the great corporations under control.

The proposition of Mayor Maloney to build the trolley line to College is safe and practical, and the bonus asked for is small considering the estimated cost and the benefits that would result. We may as well understand first as last that Bryan will have to put up if the trolley line is ever built.

No true friend of reform believes that every one who disagrees with him is either a knave or a fool.

A good man will stay at the bottom rather than climb to the top by trampling on the people under him.

Socialists are chiefly of two kinds—evolutionary and revolutionary. The former are harmless; the latter, dangerous.

There are twenty-two members of the Farmers' Union in the Thirty-first legislature and they are among the most active and useful members of that body.

That same old Balkan war cloud has again grown thick and black and threatening. The Balkan peninsula is metaphorically the murkiest region on earth.

Temple is wrestling with a municipal problem similar to that which puzzles Bryan, the question being whether to buy the waterworks plant now owned by a company or to establish a new one.

When the command, "Thou shalt not kill" was given, killing in war was not made an exception. War is organized, wholesale murder, and all the sophistry on earth cannot harmonize it with christianity.

The charges and counter-charges of filibustering between the administration and insurgent factions in the legislature reminds us of the Uncle Remus story about the 'possum and the coon yelling "varmint" at each other.

General Hancock was laughed at when he said that the tariff was a local issue but a good many statesmen have come to the conclusion that he was right. It will ultimately be generally acknowledged that prohibition is a local issue.

The Brazos county Farmers' Union is not making much noise just now because the members are real farmers and are busy with their crops. But if anybody imagines that the union is dead or even sleeping he never was worse mistaken. In his life.

Speaking of the street railway proposition in its town the Gainesville Register says: "It is often easy to pull a load after it is started, but very difficult to put it in motion. All railway propositions are of this kind." The Bryan-College trolley line is an instance. It requires a strong pull and a pull altogether to start it but it will demonstrate the advantages to be secured only through such enterprises and then other lines will be built.

After the cyclone at Laredo which killed three persons, injured many others and destroyed much property, there was a strong smell of onions in the air. Concerning this El Monterrey News says: "Las cosechas de cebollas no fueron avariadas y muchos agricultores no saben a que atribuir el fuerte olor de cebollas que impregnaba la atmosfera anoche." Which, being interpreted, means: The crops of onions were not damaged and many farmers do not know to what to attribute the strong odor of onions which impregnated the air last night.

Next Tuesday will be April 1. The New York Optimists Club has started a campaign to change the name of this world-wide anniversary from All-Fools' day to Optimists day and the character of its observance so as to substitute acts of kindness instead of the practical jokes which are generally rude and often offensive. The club has addressed a circular letter to governors, presidents of colleges and other public men, which among other things says: "April 1st, ought to be a day of good will. As at present observed, it is a relic of a barbaric age. The Optimists' club plan to change its character so that every man instead of playing practical jokes upon his neighbor will devote the day to doing good."

Spring Clothes

FOR 54 YEARS it has been Stein-Bloch's aim to make the clothes that bear their label fit better and look better than any other clothes in America. They have accomplished this by paying strict attention to workmanship. Their clothes are right at the beginning and stay that way. You may abuse them and neglect them, yet after misuse their shape and style will revive because their workmanship was true.

AN INVITATION.

You are respectfully invited to attend an informal society reception at our store on the afternoon of March 29th, 1909, between the hours of four and five o'clock. There will be present at this reception Lady Blanche Society, becomingly attired in an imported Parisian gown costing $500 and a hat costing $100, and wearing a handsome pair of "Society" shoes. She will have samples of these dainty "Society" shoes in all the latest styles and leathers, and will present a souvenir to each lady present.

Sir Charles Patriot will also be present, dressed in a rich Colonial costume, with gold lace, cocked hat, etc., as worn in Colonial times.

Sir Charles Patriot and Lady Blanche Society can be here only on this one afternoon, and will appear at our store exclusively, through the courtesy of the manufacturers of these shoes, Roberts, Johnson & Rand Shoe Company, of St. Louis.

Hoping to be favored with your presence at the reception, we remain

Yours very truly,
W. J. COULTER.

SOME EXTRAORDINARY VALUES FOR MONDAY

Big Sale of Laces.

LADIES you can not afford to miss this grand opportunity to lay in your stock of laces right at the beginning of the season. This sale will include a large line of the very newest and latest patterns for 1909 that have just been received. Linen Torchons in match sets, German Vals, French Vals, Mechlin, Cluny, Maltise and the famous Zion City lace which has no equal for design in pattern or durability. We have the sole agency. Prices will be cut, yes, less than half.

Another Shipment of White Skirts.

WE HAVE just received another shipment of beautiful white linen finish skirts, trimmed in folds and large pearl buttons, a big value for $1.50. Monday only, during our lace sale, they will go at 98c each and only one to a customer.

Wash Goods Department.

IN THIS department you may find larger quantities in the larger cities, but nothing new but what this department has. We are proud of this department as we believe we know what the people want and have the goods and do not try to push old shopworn goods off on them. We do not allow them to accumulate. Ask to see the new things for wash suits in Rep. Linens, Pongee's, Striped Poplins, Goleted, Indian Head and many others. It's a pleasure to show our goods whether you buy or not.

A Solid Wagon Load of New Millinery.

We are still receiving all of the very latest things in shapes, flowers, ornaments and foliage, in fact every thing that goes to make a beautiful hat. We are showing some very beautiful new styles made up in the Salome, Anna Held and Georgette shapes. Don't fail to see the very newest millinery.

SOCIAL AND CLUB MATTERS

The Bachelor Girl's Club will meet on Wednesday at three thirty with Miss Emmie Fountain at the A. and M. College, at the residence of her parents, Prof. and Mrs. C. P. Fountain.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert S. Webb will entertain at their beautiful home in the southern part of the city, next Friday evening from 8:30 to 12 o'clock, in honor of the Ross Volunteers of A. and M. College and their sponsor, Miss Pauline Webb.

On Tuesday afternoon the members of the Embroidery Club were invited to meet with Mrs. W. H. Oliver. A pleasant time is always insured in this hospitable home, and this meeting was especially so. It was strictly a club affair and consequently limited in point of numbers, but for genuine, unalloyed pleasure there was no restriction whatsoever. The ladies brought their fancy work and had quite a merry time indeed. The club refreshments were served. The club will meet Tuesday with Mrs. J. T. Hanway.

On Wednesday evening it was the pleasure of a number of neighbors to enjoy the courtesies of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Astin in an entertainment with cards and dominoes, given in honor of Mesdames J. S. and Charles Heard of McKinney. Several tables of players chatted merrily and progressed through many games of the popular pastime which was made doubly enjoyable by the lovely surroundings and the gracious hospitality with which this home is noted. Mrs. E. H. Astin served delicious punch from a cut glass bowl in the hall. After the last game had been played Mrs. J. T. Hanway presented to each of the honorees a handsome picture as a souvenir of this delightful occasion. At the close of the evening's enjoyment lunch cloths were spread on the game tables, and the guests were served an elaborate two course luncheon.

Miss Corine James was hostess for the Stubbart Undercliff on Friday afternoon at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. James, and such a charming meeting it proved. Pretty score cards were provided for the games of forty-two and five-hundred. A most interesting contest was this, each endeavoring to come off with the laurels. Miss Lynn Raysor was the fortunate one and was awarded the prize, a piece of hand embroidered lingerie. A lovely salad course was served. Altogether it was a most delightful affair and the guests all went away with in their praise of the amiable hostess.

Friday afternoon Mrs. Geo. R. Tabor entertained the Week End Club with a domino party. The guests, in becoming spring attire, radiant in the latest millinery conceits, presented a charming picture seated around the many tables that dotted the parlors, for the clever hostess chose forty-two for the afternoon diversion. Beautiful hand-painted score cards, done in morning glories and the artistic work of the hostess, were passed by Miss Mattie Tabor. Several exciting games were enjoyed, and a delightful afternoon was spent. The dining refreshments were not only enjoyed but much admired. The white cake which was served with a green mint ice, was handsomely embellished with a colored morning glory. An appetizing lunch was served in connection with this course.

An event of more than usual interest and brilliancy, was the Musical given by Mrs. Louis Lowry McInnis on Thursday, in honor of Mrs. J. S. Heard of McKinney, and Mrs. Roger Q. Astin of this city. "Inniscorthy" was never more tastefully arranged than on this occasion, and a wealth of spring blossoms, and a flood of balmy sunshine added the charms of the season to this pretty compliment, given by a charming hostess to her friends. Mrs. McInnis gave first welcome to her guests at the door, and with her was her girlhood friend, Mrs. J. S. Heard, whom she had not seen since the dear old school days in Alabama. With them stood Mrs. Heard's young daughter, Mrs. Roger Q. Astin, who came as a bride to Bryan only a few weeks ago, but who has this early surrounded herself by a host of loving friends. Mrs. W. C. Friley of Huntsville was also in the receiving line, and her presence added another link to the golden chain of friendship by which hostess and honorees are linked together—for Mrs. Heard had been bridesmaid at Mrs. Friley's wedding, and the two had seen each other only once before this, during all these long years that have sprinkled the snows of time into their hair. But the years have dealt kindly with these fair matrons, and only for added dignity and the "silver threads among the gold," no trace of Time is left upon their lives. This reunion of girlhood friends was indeed an inspiration for the hour, and so happily did the pleasure of it radiate, with the joyousness of the occasion.

Mrs. W. P. Bryan, Misses Malcolm and Mary McInnis, the charming daughters of the hostess, assisted in entertaining the many guests, and the dear grandmother of the home, Mrs. Graham, and an aunt, Miss Christian, who is here from Mississippi, completed the home party.

When the guests were all seated in the spacious rooms, and a refreshing punch cup had been handed, dainty programs were distributed. The program of the afternoon was one of rare excellence and every number was encored. A pretty compliment was given Miss Mary McInnis in a unanimous request for her to sing. Miss Mary possesses a sweet, true soprano voice and her notes were never more harmonious and beautiful than when she graciously responded, with Edward Manning's "The Sweetest Flower That Blows." Those who contributed to the splendid program were Miss Lila Vanardo, Mrs. Tyler Haswell, Mrs. Robert S. Webb, Mrs. Webb Howell and Mr. J. Bert Graham.

When the last numbers had been given and the prolonged clapping of gloved hands had ceased, a tempting refreshment plate was passed and the finale of this beautiful social affair was completed amid pretty words of praise and appreciation, generously given to the hostess and her honorees.

To Expedite Discussion.

Washington, March 27.—In order to expedite discussion of the tariff bill in the house unanimous consent was given that sessions hereafter begin at 10 instead of 11 o'clock, that a recess be taken at 6 and resuming at 8 o'clock, the sessions continue until 10:30 o'clock each night. The request for unanimous consent was made by Mr. Payne, who said there was already forty of fifty members who indicated a desire to speak. No intimation was given as to when general debate on the measure shall cease.

DANGER OF TORCH.

Storrs Says Miners Ought to Be Taught This.

New York, March 27.—A. H. Storrs, a consulting engineer of Scranton, Pa., who at the request of the technological bureau of the United States geological survey has been studying the modes employed in France, Belgium and Germany for the protection of the lives of coal miners, arrived on the steamer Adriatic. Mr. Storrs said he spent considerable time with the French expert, Taffanol, at the experimental station at Llevan, in the north of France, where there is a gallery sixty-five meters long for experiments to demonstrate the effect of explosions of coal dust and the gases encountered in the mines. "By the experiments it has been found," said Mr. Storrs, "that many of the so-called unaccountable explosions which have caused big disasters in mines have been due to the explosive force of coal dusts."

"One thing which the miners of this country should especially learn from the other side is the danger of the torch—the open light."

FATALITIES ATTENDED FIRE.

One Man Killed and Three Others Are Seriously Injured.

Cisco, Tex., March 27.—Bert Strickland was killed and Firemen Henry Benham, J. B. Patterson and Will McGuire seriously injured during a fire here, which caused $100,000 loss. The opera house, the merchandise house of Mayhew & Co. and the residence of L. Childs were consumed. A falling brick killed Strickland.

GIRL FOUND HANGING.

Caught in Rope While She Was Playing About a Swing.

Flovilla, Ga., March 27.—The five-year-old daughter of William Castlebury, a prominent farmer living near Indian Springs, was found hanging to a rope swinging suspended from a limb, her neck broken. The child in some mysterious way was caught in the twisting rope while playing about the swing.

Reciprocating Type Victory.

Newport, R. I., March 27.—A victory for the reciprocating type of engine, in point of coal consumption, was the showing in the first test of the three naval scout cruisers, the Birmingham, Chester and Salem, according to unofficial figures given out here. The coal consumption of the Birmingham, unofficially was thirty-two tons an hour. The Chester, which is fitted with English turbines, consumed forty tons of coal an hour, while the consumption of the Salem, which has turbines of American make and pattern, was forty-nine tons an hour.

Buy your Life Insurance as you would a suit of clothes—strictly on the merit of the policy contract.

When you buy a Manhattan policy you are guaranteed in that policy an exact accounting for every cent of your premium payments. That portion which has not actually been consumed in carrying the risk is your money, subject to your instant demand. It may be withdrawn in cash or it may be used in buying paid up insurance, as you may elect. In the event of lapse and the absence of an expressed desire on your part as to the disposition of your funds, the company automatically carries your policy in full force for a period as long as the amount on deposit will pay for the net costs, and a table of these costs is given in the policy.
